White House as indicated in the article. Mrs. Bryant was with the Department of Defense employed by National Security Agency as a systems analyst.

The Bryants were born and reared in and around Beckley, W. Va. and after living the past 25 years in Alexandria and the Washington Metropolitan Area, they have indicated that they are thoroughly enjoying the healthy and quiet atmosphere of country living. Being able to visit and chat with neighbors and friends seem to be quite a luxury after the fast pace of city life especially in the Washington Metropolitan Area.

Bryant served under five different administrations,starting under President Truman as electrician. Later during the Kennedy administration, he was asked to take care of their dogs. At that time they only had Charlie, a Welsh Terrier and Pushinki, the dog given to them by Premier Kruschev of Russia. She was an offspring of the dog the Russians sent into space. She was really a very lovable dog and during her stay at the Executive Mansion was the mother of five puppies, fathered by Charlie. Before the end of their stay in the White House they acquired three more dogs: a wolfhound, named Wolf; a German Sheppard, named Clipper; and a Cocker Spaniel, named Shannon. Mrs. Kennedy, as well as the children, was a great dog lover.

After the tragedy in Dallas when President Johnson came to the White House, he requested that Bryant continue taking responsibility of his dog which included Him and Her, a couple of Beagles. Like all people in public life the Johnsons soon began to accumulate more animals. A young girl from Illinois sent the first addition, a white collie named Blanks. These dogs are very rare and he turned out to be tempermental as well. But he was really a beautiful dog and added this beauty to the lawn of the executive mansion. Others included Edgar, a Beagle given to the President by the late J. Edgar Hoover. Of course there were also Beagle puppies and they somehow took away some of the saddness when both Him and Her met with fatal accidents. Bryant believes the most lovable of all was the dog, Luci, found at a service station in Texas. He ended up being a favorite and constant companion of President Johnson.

When he retired during the Nixon Administration, they had only three dogs. A poodle named Vicky, belonging to Julie, and a Scottish Terrier named Pasha, belonging to Tricia. President Nixon's staff gave him an Irish Setter, named King Temahoe. He was really a beautiful dog and added his beauty to the White House lawn as Blanks had during president Johnson's stay.

Mr. Bryant, along with his writer, Miss Frances S. Leighton, are now working on a book of all his delightful as well as the few sad experiences he encountered while being the number one dog keeper for the number one dogs in our country.

MISS BYRNES 6th GRADE 4H

Our meeting was opened by President, Cindy Roach. We said the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag and said the 4-H Pledge. Then our song leader led us in singing "Cindy" and "He's Got the Whole World." Secretary, Vicky Reed read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Sweet taught us how to play a game called "Pet Set." In this game we learned about different pets. At the end of the game, the meeting was adjourned.
